HONGKONG, MAY 7TH, 1875.

The agitation which the Yunnan outrage has occasioned in England has brought Mr. W. H. MUNDY to the fore again. That gentleman, conceiving that his case is in no degree weaker than that of Mr. Margary, has claims, through The Times, on the Govern-Chinese Empire is to be made the subject of large circle of private friends. demands upon the Government of Peking, he may, with even more reason than before advance his claim for compensation for the Foochew, 7th; Hongkong, 11th; Manila, violence he suffered in a more settled region, where life and property ought to have been as above, was received, via Marseilles, on the make the English name respected in a dis- (P. and O:) mail, with a week's later dates, left trict where it has hitherto been scarcely livered on its due date the 29th March. known, it is most unjustifiable to permit it to become a mere byword where it has really to be repeated, whereas a trading vessel on the frequented line between Canton and Macao may be plundered at any time, since ! the opportunity is almost daily offered, while the knowledge that such an act can be perpetrated with impunity is, beyond all doubt, a good guarantee that it will be done again We must, however, beg to disagree with Mr. MUNDY in this last conclusion. The pirates were mercilessly nunished, and the certainty that an attack on Englishmen will at all events lead to a vigorous search for the offenders is calculated to intimidate any but the hardiest sea robbers from venturing to again molest them.

What that rule is to be Lord DERRY will have to decide. The two cases before us are, as The Times says, typical; and will no doubt in future be appealed to as precedents. IMPEDIAL QUARTO. ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY, WITE THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN

PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Pross Office, Hongkong,

NOR comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and being required. in science generally, which the rapid advance C. L. and Co. of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are sere given in extenso. Each and every word in fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Billiard Table Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the scoents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those rast margine and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. lamps. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the Eighteen light ring burner Gas Pendants, following facts are submitted for consideration. Chalmers' Vocabularly contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medburst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilet this work contains more, than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese obsracters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in plains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in (1) HE TOURIST'S GUIDE - THE Al German Barque Thing it cannot but be invaluable occasionally. It comprises upwards of two thousand large

How poor they seem! how few, how worthless all! Ah! for another spring Or if the summer, late and cold at best Might come again and bring The light and warmth that hest mature the grain Before the frest falls and the latter rain !

And yet He knows, and judges all might Some by the wayside fell : Some came to saught; and some the birds devoured; And He alone can tell What bitter chance or circumstante decreed. The utter failure of the cherished wed.

But it may be in a diviner air Transaguire and made pure, The harvest that we deemed as wholly lost Waits perfect and mature ! And the faint heart that now defeated grieves May yet stand smiling 'mid abandant sheaves.

THE LATE TOM HOOD. In one of the brighter turns of the "unof November, he was so well that he could

FATHER AND SON By warrant under the late Tom Hood's own band I am enabled, by favour of a communication from Mr. Bryan, late editor of emasculated-looking youths who emerge on the Blackturn Standard, and now of the Sundays arm-in-arm from their college or Kenlish Gasette, to set at rest for ever, so far lycée in France. Every lout there will be able one of Tom Hood's "Annuals," alluded to whom he intends to pursue with his love in the possible confusion that might arise through | the holidays. It is a wonderful, though unthe identity of the names of the father and fortunately a rare sight, to see a French the son, observing that the author of ." The Youth play cricket. He can't stand toing Bridge of Sighs" was commonly spoken of as bowled at, and all the slan which would carry it is very wrong, but as I was christened in and; being conceited about his advanced infant who began so badly. I sign my name dishes at a three-and-a-half franc restaurant Tom partly because it is my name and partly | which are most grateful to his palate. because it is not the trade-mark of Thomas Let me add that the publishers knew name to my novels as 'Tom.' You will see! on reference to my father's books that they are all by Thomas Hood! I would gladly give any money to the man who can show me my father's signature as 'Tom Hood.' Yours-may I say ?-- Tom Hood." This note should be a sufficient hint to literary commentators henceforward to discontinue the practice, which is not yet wholly extinct, of referring to the writer of "The Song of the Shirt" as Tom Hood .- Gentleman's Magazine.

MANCHESTER IN 1799

Only an antiquary or a very old inhabitant can recall Manchester as it was at the close of the last century, and shutting bis eyes upon railway arch, station, and esplanade. upon Palatine Buildings, broad roadways. and river embankments, can see the Irk and the Irwell as they were when the Cathedral was the Collegiate Church, and a diminutive brick wall round its encient graveyard. It is the more difficult to account for the increasing manliness of our boys, as it is undoubtedly the fact that they are treated in a way now, at our nublic schools, which is luxury compared to what their fathers had to put up with before them. Their rooms are the picture of neatness and cleanliness. Their food is ample and well cooked. We believe it not true that they are occasionally indulged in turtle soup and venison; but even if they were, that would not do them so much barm as the filthy habits they contracted thirty or forty years ago in the common halls and thereafter distribute among Policy holders of our great public schools.
